Student Career Journey Spotlight

Persistence Pays Off for MSJC Accounting Major

Yancy Roach, a recent Business Administration graduate from Mt. San Jacinto College (MSJC), exemplifies the transformative power of persistence and career readiness. After first connecting with MSJC's Job Developer at the Temecula Valley Job Fair in September 2022, Yancy proactively followed up to express his career goals — specifically, securing an internship in the accounting and finance field.

Over the course of the year, Yancy engaged in multiple employability workshops, participated in mock interviews, and consistently sought guidance from MSJC's Job Developer, Nesha Hill. Though initially selected for an internship with the City of Temecula, that opportunity became unavailable. Undeterred, Yancy remained committed to the process, refining his professional materials and interview skills.

Through his consistent engagement with Career Services, and with the Job Developer's ongoing support in connecting him to internship opportunities, his perseverance was rewarded when he successfully interviewed with the City of Menifee. Beginning in September 2023, he served as an Accounting and Finance Intern through June 2024, gaining direct industry experience while maintaining a 4.0 GPA in his online courses based out of the Temecula Valley campus. He continues to stay in contact with the Career Services and Experiential Learning Department to offer support to current students.

Yancy's drive extended beyond MSJC. He has since transferred to UC Santa Barbara, where he is currently pursuing his bachelor's degree and interning with GHJ as an Audit/Tax Intern. He is on track to graduate in June 2026.

Yancy's story underscores the impact of intentional career support, real-world learning opportunities, and student resilience. His trajectory — from local job fair to regional internship to UC transfer — demonstrates what's possible when students pursue their goals with purpose.

Student Career Journey Spotlight

Dreams Realized: Sadie Johnson Begins Her Career with Meniffee Union School District

Sadie Johnson's journey to becoming an early childhood educator is one of perseverance, resilience, and triumph. Despite facing health challenges, financial hardship, and personal loss, she never gave up on her dream of working with children and families.

At MSJC, Sadie enrolled in the CDE 148 Supervised Teaching course, where she gained valuable experience and connections. Through her instructor's partnership with the Career Services department, Sadie attended a Career Readiness Workshop on resume and interview skills. After transferring and graduating from University of Alabama and returning to Meniffee in August 2025, she reached out to Job Developer, Nesha Hill for guidance.

"I remember sitting in class in the Fall and you gave me this confidence that I didn't know that I had," Sadie said to Nesha Hill. "Once I moved back to Meniffee, I knew that I had to reach out to you to help me."

Moreover, with the support of MSJC's Job Developer, Sadie engaged in a mock interview, built her confidence, and soon after landed her dream job. Today, Sadie is working full-time with the Meniffee Union School District, where she has also been chosen to help spearhead a new initiative focused on individualized curriculum and neurodivergent interventions.

"It felt like everything I had worked toward, every obstacle, every hardship, had led me to this exact place," Sadie shared, reflecting on her experience.

Her story is a powerful reminder that perseverance, mentorship, and resilience can transform challenges into opportunities and dreams into reality.

JPMorgan Chase and MSJC Partner to Empower Business Leaders of the Future

JPMorgan Chase has emerged as a standout employer partner at Mt. San Jacinto College, bringing industry expertise and mentorship to students pursuing careers in business and related fields. In Spring 2025, Chase Bank in partnership with the Career Services department hosted a series of workshops designed to equip MSJC students with practical knowledge in entrepreneurship and business development.

The sessions were open to students across a range of majors — including Business, Accounting, Digital Media, Communication, and Entrepreneurship — and offered a unique opportunity to learn directly from professionals in the field. JPMorgan Chase representatives provided real-world context, career guidance, and encouragement that helped students connect classroom concepts to future goals.

One participant from the Umoja program shared that the experience “gave me a new perspective on what it takes to succeed in business. It motivated me to think bigger and apply what I’m learning in class to real-world opportunities.”

MSJC continues to value this dynamic collaboration and looks forward to expanding efforts with JPMorgan Chase through additional mentorship opportunities, internship pathways, and career-focused events that prepare students to thrive in today’s workforce.

Job Development Support Through Career Connection Lab Drop-In

Grateful for an inspiring day at our Career Connection Lab Drop-In!

Students showed up ready to learn, grow, and take steps toward their future careers. Each student received a book to support their career journey, personally signed with a motivational message to encourage and guide them along the way.

A huge thank you to our amazing partner, COPE Health Solutions for joining us and sharing such valuable insights. I am incredibly grateful for this partnership, we have so many exciting things in store to create meaningful opportunities for our students and community.

Today was another reminder of why we do this work: connecting education with opportunity and empowering students to soar. Explore opportunities and activate your Handshake account!

Employer Engagement: Strengthening Pathways Through Partnership

TEDx Temecula

Mt. San Jacinto College (MSJC) has been an active collaborator and sponsor of TEDx Temecula for the past two years, with Corinna York, Director of Regional Employer Engagement, serving on the leadership team. As part of the leadership team, our Director of Regional Employer Engagement has played a central role in advancing these partnerships.

MSJC's participation extends across multiple areas, including co-branding, hosting TEDx Salon events, and creating opportunities for students to engage directly with thought leaders and innovators. Our Makerspace Specialist, Dr. Hal Edghill, has further enhanced this collaboration by lending his expertise to the TEDx team—designing innovative and creative centerpieces and speaker awards that reflect both artistry and community spirit. This platform not only fosters long-lasting industry partnerships but also provides MSJC students with real-world experiences that inspire innovation, strengthen career readiness, and expand professional networks. Through these efforts, MSJC continues to enhance its role as a bridge between education, industry, and the broader community.

Employer Engagement: Strengthening Pathways Through Partnership

Valley Young Professional Educational Summit

Mt. San Jacinto College (MSJC) is proud to collaborate with the Temecula Valley Chamber's Valley Young Professionals, having hosted three successful educational summits and preparing to launch the fourth on October 21st. This year's summit, Storytellers: Honest Origins, Powerful Perspectives, will feature industry experts sharing their personal journeys and insights to inspire the next generation of leaders. At previous summits, attendees have had the opportunity to engage with seasoned professionals who are actively reshaping the landscapes of their industries. Whether participants are carving out their career path, scaling a business, or stepping into leadership within the community, the summit serves as a launchpad for growth and connection.

By bringing together industry experts, Valley Young Professionals, and MSJC students, these events provide valuable resources, real-world perspectives, and networking opportunities that help build stronger professional foundations and long-term community impact. Under the leadership of Director Corinna York, MSJC's commitment to employer engagement ensures these summits continue to empower young professionals and students while strengthening partnerships across the region.

Employer Engagement: Strengthening Pathways Through Partnership

Women in Business – Leadership, Equity & Opportunity in the Workforce

Mt. San Jacinto College (MSJC) is proud to collaborate on the upcoming Women in Business – Leadership, Equity & Opportunity in the Workforce event. Geared toward employers, business professionals, and community partners, this event aims to expand employer awareness and build stronger partnerships that directly support student success through internships, job placements, and mentorship opportunities.

The program will feature discussions on women in leadership and entrepreneurship, inclusive hiring practices, regional workforce development, and innovative business–education partnerships.

Attendees will also gain insights into practical ways to engage with local colleges, such as MSJC, to strengthen career pipelines and empower the next generation of professionals.

Through this collaboration, MSJC continues to advance its mission of connecting education with industry, creating meaningful opportunities for both employers and students across the region.

Employer Partner Success Testimonial: Student Success & Placement

Village Hemet and MSJC Strengthen Healthcare Pathways Through Mentorship and Experience

Mt. San Jacinto College is proud to spotlight The Village Hemet as a dedicated employer partner committed to advancing student success in healthcare. As a community-focused organization offering wellness and supportive services, The Village Hemet has created meaningful opportunities for MSJC students to gain hands-on experience while exploring long-term career pathways.

Through their consistent involvement in career fairs, Lunch and Learn events, and Health and Wellness Job Fairs, they've helped students connect with professionals and see the breadth of possibilities in the field. The Village Hemet has also welcomed MSJC Medical Assisting students into administrative internships, providing real-world settings where students build technical and communication skills that directly support their classroom learning.

In addition to supporting current students, The Village Hemet is working with MSJC to expand future opportunities for Nursing students, helping bridge the gap between education and employment. Their staff go beyond hosting interns — they mentor, encourage, and inspire.

Nursing student Rizaida Devera, Class of 2025, shared, “My internship at The Village Hemet gave me valuable administrative experience while also showing me how healthcare providers can truly serve their community. It confirmed my decision to pursue a career in healthcare.”

This partnership continues to strengthen local workforce pipelines and reinforces the shared commitment to preparing students for careers that make a difference.
